THREE FEATURES ON EMPIRE BILL

Bernice Crandall, in a leading role in the drama, "The Romance of a Poor Young Man," will be found to possess a most attractive personality, when she makes her initial appearance at the Empire Theatre today. Miss Crandall is assisted by a company who make the most of the parts assigned to them in the stirring two-part drama. Tragic scenes, comedy episodes and picturesque features are combined in this production.

Alfred Marques and Miriam Stanley in the principal roles in "Everything Against Him," are said to be excellent in their impersonations. The plot for this drama was taken from a story that recently appeared in a popular magazine. It deals with a method employed by the metropolitan police in running down criminals. The trial and conviction of an innocent man furnishes the motive for a powerful argument. George Holt, Frederick Stanley and Alf. Vosberg, favorites with patrons of the silent stage, are featured in the play.

"The Man That Might Have Been" is a film adaption from a story by Rupert Hughes. It is ably interpreted for the screen by William Humphrey, Leah Baird and a selected company of players.

Henry B. Walthall and Miss Joyce Moore, charming actress, will close their engagement in "Beulah" at the Popular theatre tonight. This absorbing photo-drama, adapted from Augusta J. Evans' romance of Louisiana, has made a great hit in Honolulu since its first production a week ago.

Manager Bredhoff's next feature will be "When Fate Leads Trumps." This picture is a release of the Alliance Film Corporation, and is an adaptation of the novel by Alice M. Roberts. It will open for a week's run tomorrow night, with the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

"When Fate Leads Trumps" features three stars—Gordon De Maine, William A. Williams and Octavia Handworth—and they are supported by what is said to be an excellent cast.

M'GREGOR'S NOT POPULAR.

Citizens of Maui have been circulating a petition which asks that the appropriation of $10,000 made by the last legislature be not used in the reconstruction of McGregor's landing. The petitioners claim that the expenditure of money at McGregor's would be useless, as the landing is out of the way and not needed.

Melba's Voice And Magical Art Entrance Big Audience

Matchless Diva Charms Alike With Personality and Ripe Vocal Equipment

Matchless Melba? An audience that crowded and literally overflowed the Opera House on Saturday night echoed and re-echoed this sentiment of appreciation for one of the greatest sopranos of this or any other time—one whose appearances bring no thought of comparison, for she is a diva apart from comparison.

A cosmopolitan audience—men and women who travel much and are familiar with opera and concert in New York, Paris, Milan and Vienna—greeted Mme. Melba at the first of her two concerts. And with those sweet, pure, splendidly modulated tones, unaffected and engaging personality and a vocal art to which the whole world has paid tribute—with these and with what seemed a particular pleasure in singing in Honolulu, Melba won this audience to unbounded enthusiasm.

This sincere enthusiasm began with her first number, Ambroise Thomas' "Mad Scene," from Hamlet, an aria in which Melba was given the largest dramatic opportunity of the evening. At every song the applause and manifested appreciation grew and grew until each delightful bow that she made to the pit and gallery was the signal for an ovation.

Criticism is beside the point in discussing Melba. Nature endowed her with perhaps the most generous gift of song bestowed on any soprano of which musical writers have taken note. And personality, studious attention to the niceties of vocal expression, fidelity to musicianship were added to the endowment, and with the years came an experience which tested everything, rejected that which was not enhancing to greatest effect, accepted that which achieved the desired results. No wonder her fame is worldwide; that she is referred to as the "perfect soprano." Those who heard her on Saturday night might marvel at the simplicity of her performance, unimpaired of the fact that it is simple.

YOUNG PIANIST, STUDENT OF BAUER, WILL SPEND WINTER IN HONOLULU

Frank Moss, student of Harold Bauer, the great pianist, and himself a pianist and organist of wide fame, is in Honolulu and will give a recital at the Hawaiian Opera House some time toward the middle of September. Mr. Moss arrived last Tuesday on the Matsushima. He intended at the time to make but a temporary stay in the islands, but so delighted has he become with the beauties of the place that he has taken a cottage and plans now to spend the winter here.

The young pianist has the distinction of being compared to his great teacher, Harold Bauer, in the spirit of his playing. Press notices do him the honor of saying that his work more nearly approximates that of Bauer than does the work of any other musician of the time.

Mr. Moss studied under Bauer in Paris during the years of 1909 and 1910. Previous to that time he had studied under other famous artists, among whom are Jessie L. Gaynor, the well known writer of German songs, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Busch, and Muehlbauer of New York.

For the last three years Moss has been at the head of the piano department of the California Conservatory of Music, which is the oldest musical school in San Francisco.

Before taking up the position in California he was director and head of the piano department of the School of Musical Art in St. Joseph, Missouri. Though most of his time has been spent on the piano, Mr. Moss has also won a favorable reputation as an organist. He held the position of church organist for several months in the high cathedral at Leavenworth, was organist a year at the First Christian church in St. Joseph, a year at the Baptist church in the same place, a year at the Presbyterian church in Oakland, and a year and a half at the Church of the Holy Redeemer in San Francisco.

showing how the ambition of a successful man almost separates him from his faithful but less progressive wife and the eventual triumph of noble instincts. It is the ever popular "problem" play—there is another woman.

With wealth and political honor the husband feels that the wife who aided in his earlier struggles is hardly in keeping with his new sphere in life. He would cast her off and plans to do so, but reckons without the wife, who rises to a level never dreamed of by the husband—the Governor—and wins him back again.

Marguerite Clark in "Gretchen Green," will be the week-end offering.

O'ROARK SKETCH HAS 'CAUGHT ON'

Much praise has been given, in advance, to the Jane O'Roark-Broderick O'Farrell Company now appearing at the Bijou. This company proves to merit all that has been said about it. Opening Saturday night in "The Law," which will be continued through Wednesday evening, a packed house greeted the company and alternately laughed and held its breath during the action of the sketch.

Much might be said of the play. It points a common error in the legal procedure of today, shows a remedy, and does it all in a nice manner. A delicate subject is handled in a delicate way. Miss O'Roark in the role of a young Italian woman is particularly good, and, judging by her opening performance of Saturday night, she will be a favorite in Honolulu. This offering will be repeated for the next three nights.

However, the Bijou show for the early week, by no means ends with "The Law." There are a couple of photo-plays, "Alias Jimmy Valentine," and a George Ade fable in slang. The latter is something new to the movies. The former, Paul Armstrong's great crook drama, features Robert Warwick.

Mr. Melba's second concert will be given tomorrow evening.

A constant stream of flowers—in which, of course, the lei of Hawaii was prominent—went across the footlights to the singer. One pretty incident arose from the fact that to accommodate the crowd it was necessary to place seats on the stage. A family occupied some of these seats, apparently father, mother and three cunning children—two small girls and a wide-eyed, wee little boy. After one of Melba's songs these three children scampered off the stage and quickly reappeared bearing three enormous baskets of flowers.

LOST FOR WHOLE WEEK IN JUNGLES ON MAUI

John A. Wieduwilt, who calls himself the "universal tramp and stowaway," has just suffered one of the severest hardships of his varied existence. He was lost for a week in the wilderness near Kenna Gap on Maui. Wieduwilt wandered from July 21 to August 6, when he stumbled into Pauwela, a mass of bruises and scratches, having gone five days without food and three days without water. The seven days of wandering were filled with keenest suffering. Sometimes Wieduwilt fought his way inch by inch through the tropic jungle, and sometimes dragged himself over great patches of broken lava. So severe were the hardships he encountered that he says he would not face the trip again for a million dollars. The story which Wieduwilt has written of the trip is full of interesting descriptions, and reads like a boy's book of wild adventures.
